Majorelle garden - Yves St Laurent Museum

Marrakesh is really two cities standing side by side - the old town within its historic walls and the new town with its districts of Gueliz and l'Hivernage. The city covers a good deal of ground, and is ideal for exploring on foot, by bicycle or by barouche, the traditional Marrakchi way of getting from one place to another.

The Majorelle Garden, Arsat Moulay Abdessalam Park, the gardens of the Bahia Palace, and the Menara and Agdal orchards - each, in its own unique way, a haven of peace, relaxation, and pure delight! The city with a thousand years of history has seen 5 dynasties, each one leaving their indelible mark on its destiny.

It was founded in 1062 by the Almoravids, whose greatest legacy was to bring water to the city, harnessing spring waters through an ingenious system of wells and piping networks. We owe them the city's Palmeraie, its gardens and orchards, and the many other amenities that led to its development and influence. Under their rule, Marrakesh became the capital of Morocco.

The monuments included are indicated as information. In case of exceptional closure of one of the monuments, it will be replaced by another of equivalent level.

Kindly note that once confirmed, entrance tickets to the Majorelle Garden, the Berber Museum, and the Yves Saint Laurent Museum are non-changeable and non-refundable.

- 2 nights at the Royal Mansour Casablanca.

DAY 6

Hassan II Mosque - Ain Diab Beaches - Art Deco Houses - Sacree Cœur Church

Casablanca, economic heart of the Kingdom, lives at a frenetic pace. Business and art go side by side here, often intermingling. It is here, above all, that tones and trends are set. Why is it that so many artists have found their inspiration in Casablanca? Perhaps the contrasting curves of its Art Deco buildings are enough to cast a spell over them.

The richness of the city's architectural heritage is sufficient in itself to call forth the image of a city where time has no hold. Charged with history yet resolutely turned towards the future, this most cosmopolitan of cities, where every nationality is represented, parades its modernity for all to see. The Mosque Hassan II is the largest Mosque of the world after the one of la Mecque and Medine.

DAY 7

- Private transfer to Tamuda Bay.
- 5 nights at Royal Mansour Tamuda Bay.

DAY 8

Tetouan is a cultural treasure. Nicknamed the “White Dove,” the city is home to one of Morocco’s best-preserved medinas, listed as a UNESCO World Heritage site. Its architecture reflects centuries of Andalusian influence, from elegant white façades to intricate zellige work. As you walk through the lively streets, you’ll catch glimpses of traditional craftsmanship, historic city gates, and cultural institutions that bear witness to Tetouan’s important role as a crossroads between Morocco and Andalusia.

You’ll also discover Tetouan’s renowned sweet treats, from gazelle horns and almond-hazelnut ktayefs to melt-in-the-mouth peanut cakes—all individually wrapped with care. And of course, the iconic almond and orange-blossom baklawa, an absolute must-try.
